ABOUT ME

I'm a Full-Stack developer with a strong passion for all IT and technology. What I'm looking for is an environment where quality is the main focus. I believe that testing is the most important skill for a developer. The ability and knowledge to write code suitable for automated tests includes all the quality concepts of good programming, such as SOLID principles, design patterns, maintainability, scalability etc.

Testing is the necessary condition to be able to deliverer better software and faster thanks to continuous delivery and continuous integration.

I'd like to work in an environment where there's no fear for new technologies and different approaches. People together can achieve better results. I want to cooperate with other people making tough decisions together. Most importantly, I want to share knowledge with everybody. I can teach something, and I can learn from anybody.
